Tremolo attains ISO 27001 security certification for a 3rd year running

03/11/2017 – BATTLE, UNITED KINGDOM – Today Tremolo® Software, an enterprise-class software company, focused on driving brand engagement through dynamic newsletters, portals and social media, has announced they have attained ISO 27001 security certification for the third year running.

ISO27001 is an international information security standard and by achieving this it demonstrates that information security best practice is being followed to the highest standard and data is adequately protected, as assessed by independent experts. Regular assessments also occur after this to ensure this standard is maintained.

What does this mean to Tremolo's customers?

With clients trusting Tremolo to manage their data when used in socialondemand® newsondemand or portalondemand, it is fundamental that clients can feel rest assured that the highest measures have been taken to protect their data from being misused.

Olivier Choron, CEO and Founder of Tremolo says 'We take our security and internal business processes very seriously at Tremolo, and I am delighted that this has been recognized for the third year running. It is not an easy certificate to obtain, and my team have done a fantastic job in maintaining this high standard and I am delighted with the results.'

About Tremolo Software
